

Drive on to Force Civil Rights Vote

By WILLIAM A. AROGAST
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A drive to force a House vote on civil rights legislation early next year inched ahead today after a whirlwind start Monday.

It was in the form of a petition to wrest control of the bill from foot-dragging Rules Committee and line it up for four days of debate and a showdown vote on the House floor, probably about Jan. 27.

To be successful, the petition must have the signatures of 218 House members. Not until then will the names be made public. Only while the House is sitting can the signatures be affixed.

The petition was filed Monday by Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., whose Judiciary Committee approved the civil rights bill last Oct. 29 but hasn't been able to get it out of the Rules Committee. Chairman Howard W. Smith, D-Va., has announced that the rules group would start hearings sometime in January.

Celler said that wasn't definite enough. He suspected that Smith, a veteran force of civil rights measures, might prolong the hearings indefinitely.

A rash of enthusiasm produced 115 signers in the first hour of the House session Monday as Democratic liberals and a handful of Republicans lined up with pens in hand. Then business fell off and by the end of the day 131 signatures were on the petition.

Hijacker of Liner Angers UN Group

By TOM HOGE
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

(AP)—Henrique Galvao, the hijacker of the Portuguese liner Santa Maria, waited in a New York hotel room today for a plane back to Brazil after U.N. appearance that angered African delegates who sponsored it.

Galvao defied the threat of extradition to Portugal to appear before the U.N. trusteeship committee and discuss his country's rule in its African territories.

African members of the committee were incensed when Galvao, former governor of Angola, expressed doubts that Portuguese Africa was ready for independence and questioned whether African unity moves would meet with success under present conditions.

The 68-year-old former army captain also denounced Portugal's dictator, Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar, but said Salazar could not be removed unless the United States, Britain and France stop supporting his regime.

Committee Chairman Achkar Marof of Guinea warned Galvao to limit his remarks to Portugal's African territories of Angola, Mozambique and Portuguese Guinea. Marof interrupted Galvao repeatedly when he veered from the territories to African problems in general.

Galvao was expected to take a plane tonight back to Brazil, where he has been a refugee since he and a band of rebels hijacked the Santa Maria in 1961.

As he arrived by airliner in New York Monday, a representative of the Portuguese Embassy in Washington called to request Galvao's extradition to Lisbon. He faces a 22-year-sentence there, given him in absentia in connection with the seizure of the liner and the killing of an officer of the ship.

Man Killed in Malvern Wreck

MALVERN, Ark. (AP)—Duke Wilson, 24, of Hot Springs was killed and his father Carl Wilson seriously injured early today when their car collided with a truck in downtown Malvern. The two men were on their way to hunt deer.

Garland County sheriff's deputy Calvin York said the impact threw the car against a bank building and he understood the two passengers were pinned in it.

Texarkana Vice Raid Gets Results

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — Prosecutor John Goodson charged seven persons Monday in connection with a vice raid on a motel Sunday.

The charges included operating a gambling house and operating a bawdy house.

Tucker Holmes and Lynn Calaway Holmes of Texarkana, owners of the Colonial Motel, were charged with operating a gambling house and a brothel.

C. C. Etchison and J. L. Carpenter, both of Little Rock, were charged with operating a gambling house. Goodson said they were dealers.

Marlene L. Blackston of Little Rock, Mary E. Hartsell of Texarkana and Pauline Joyce Whitfield of Dallas, Tex., were charged with operating a brothel.

All were released on $1,500 bond.

Mail Early Post Office Advises

Postmaster Robert Wilson had his annual Christmas 'present' ready today for his patrons and, to nobody's surprise, it was his perennial suggestion: "Mail Early."

"Christmas shopping and mailing is, for most people, one of the heaviest chores at Christmas," Mr. Wilson said, "and if I can persuade some people to get it done right now I think they will agree later — when they are taking it easy while others rush around — that I have given them a very good present."

"Virtually all Christmas mailing can be disposed of now by observing the following five suggestions," Postmaster Wilson explained.

1. Do your shopping for your Christmas gifts now.

2. Check and revise mailing lists for cards and presents.

3. Package and mail Christmas parcels promptly. Don't worry about being too early — just mark them "Do Not Open Until Christmas."

4. Buy Christmas cards now and address them right away, separating them into out-of-town and local bundles. Mail them immediately with ZIP Codes on them and you've got it made, except perhaps for that last-minute card you forgot to send to Aunt Minnie.

5. Buy plenty of stamps now.

Young Singing Star Credits for Her Success Largely to Inspiration of Her Parents

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—In a day when weeping over one's sad childhood and knocking one's parents is something of a national pastime, Diannah Carroll is a refreshing surprise.

This talented Negro singing star credits her success largely to the inspiration and faith shown by her father, a subway motorman, and her mother, a nurse who works with disturbed children.

"I had an exceptionally happy childhood and very loving parents," she said.

"What my parents had to give they gave — love and security and the feeling they were 100 per cent behind me in anything I wanted to try."

"That security they gave me in my early years built in me the confidence later to go out and knock down doors. I never let setbacks throw me into a depression."

"When I think now of all the things my father and mother did for me when I was too young to appreciate them, I get excited about them all over again."

Miss Carroll paused then at a memory, and shook her head in regret.

Fear Mounts for Safety of 21 Hostages

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — A struggle between Bolivia's government and Communist-led tin miners who hold four Americans and 17 others as hostages entered an ominous phase today.

A 24-hour deadline set by the miners for the government to release two jailed Communist union leaders or "suffer the consequences" came and passed with no immediate word of developments on either side. The government had given no indication it would free the union leaders.

Fears mounted for the safety of the hostages.

The ultimatum did not spell out what the consequences might be, but observers recalled a similar crisis in 1949, when miners seized four American engineers, held them hostage briefly, then killed them.

One hopeful aspect was a report that Vice President Juan Lechin, leftist leader of the tin miners, had one friendly relations with one of the Americans, Thomas Martin, 27, of New York, a U.S. Information Agency officer.

In a radio-telephone talk with the U.S. Embassy at La Paz, Martin said he was being held in a safe place.

Members Can Criticize Union Bosses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court let stand today a lower court decision that labor union members have wide latitude to engage in criticism of union officers.

The high tribunal refused to review a ruling by the U.S. Circuit Court in New York. This held that the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act bars unions from disciplining members found guilty of slandering or libeling union officers.

In 1961, District Council 9 of the AFL-CIO Painters and Paperhangers Union found Solomon Salzhandler guilty of libeling an official of Local 442 by accusations concerning union funds. He was ordered removed from office as financial secretary and suspended from union affairs for five years.

Appealing, Salzhandler won in the circuit court. It said Congress intended to protect the right of free speech of union members to a greater degree than it is protected in the U.S. Constitution.

The union appealed to the Supreme Court, saying "few decisions have so shocked the labor movement."

In other decisions today, the Supreme Court:

Refused to rule on a complaint that "excessive" bail of $100,000 was set for Norman Mastrian, arrested in connection with the killing of Mrs. Carol Thompson in St. Paul, Minn.

Okays Money for Construction

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate approved a $1,617,489,000 military construction appropriations bill Monday which included $2,775,000 for Arkansas military installations.

The bill provides funds to finance military construction during the year which began July 1. Arkansas allocations were $49,000 for Blytheville Air Force Base; $1,646,000 for Little Rock Air Force Base and $500,000 for 33 family housing units at the Pine Bluff Arsenal.

Pre-Winter Storm Hits Central U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A pre-winter storm swept across wide areas from the central Plateau region into the central Rockies and the northern Midwest today.

A second storm which dumped heavy amounts of snow in western New York, mountain areas of western Pennsylvania and northern Ohio appeared tapering off.

Three inches of snow fell in a six-hour period in Salt Lake City and in Landers, Wyo., lesser amounts were reported in other areas and heavy snow warnings were issued for parts of Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota. Snow also was indicated in parts of Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona and in most areas west of the Mississippi River except Pacific Coast states.

In the northeast, 6 to 8 inches of snow fell in Cambria and Somerset counties in western Pennsylvania. Gusty winds resulted in much drifting. A two-inch snowfall in Pittsburgh slowed travel.

Two to six inches of snow covered areas in northern Ohio, with heaviest amounts in Geauga County, east of Cleveland. Visibility was cut sharply by blowing snow in Ashtabula and Lake counties.

Temperatures were below zero in parts of the Dakotas and Montana with -6 in Minot, N.D., one of the lowest readings.

GP Plans More Expansion

CROSSETT, Ark. (AP) — Georgia Pacific Corp. President R. B. Pamplin indicated in an address Monday night his firm would go further than announced expansion plans.

Pamplin told the Crossett Chamber of Commerce that with plans already announced and with cooperation demonstrated by Crossett people the community could become, percentage wise, the fastest growing city in Arkansas. Pamplin said further Georgia-Pacific expansion is planned, but would not elaborate.

Georgia-Pacific has already started part of a five-year $200 million company-wide expansion and reconversion program at Crossett.

A new paper bag plant and current expansion at Crossett would create 450 new jobs, Pamplin said.

Told Johnson May Review Farm Program

By OVID A. MARTIN

CHICAGO (AP) — A Senate leader gave the American Farm Bureau Federation a hint today the Johnson Administration may decide to review federal farm programs before deciding its future agricultural policies.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the Senate's assistant Democratic leader, said in a talk prepared for the federation's annual convention that he soon will commend to the President the establishment of a national commission to study and recommend action to meet agriculture's modern-day needs.

The Minnesota senator's proposal carried unusual weight because he came to the convention not only to express his own views on farm problems but as the carrier of a message to the convention from President Johnson.

Long an advocate of strong federal farm programs — including mandatory production controls — Humphrey disclosed that he now has become convinced that there are better ways of meeting problems of some farm products than mandatory controls.

The Farm Bureau long has been advocating gradual elimination of federal controls. In his annual message to the convention Monday, Bureau President Charles B. Shuman urged the Johnson administration to change directions set by the late President Kennedy and move toward freeing farmers.

KIDNAPED — Frank Sinatra, Jr., center, shown with his father and mother in a recent photograph, was kidnapped at gunpoint from his hotel room in Stateline, Nev., shortly before he was to appear at a Lake Tahoe casino. Young Sinatra has just started a singing career, following in the footsteps of his father.

Gambling Charges Filed at Texarkana

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — Prosecutor John Goodson charged Mr. and Mrs. Fleet F. Magee of Miller County Monday with operating a gambling place.

The couple was arrested Sunday after a raid on a horse race operation at their home on U.S. Highway 82 east of Texarkana. They were released on bond.

Goodson said quarter horse racing and betting was under way at the time of the raid and that purses were awarded on each race.

Arkansas State Police and the Miller County Sheriff's Office participated in the raid.

Goodson said the track was equipped with an electric starting gate and photo finish equipment.

Local Student to Visit in Washington

Mack McLarty, Hope High School senior, has been selected as one of two boys from Arkansas to visit Washington, D.C. as a Junior Senator.

From January 26-30 Mack and Mayo Lee from Clarendon, who is Arkansas's other Junior Senator, will participate with 90 other boys in Senate discussions. In addition, they will have a conference with President Johnson.

This nationwide program is sponsored by the Hearst Foundation. The State Departments of Education sends one application to each school in the U.S. Using these applications and letters of recommendation two boys from each state are chosen.

Since Senator McClellan is senior senator, Mack hopes to serve under him. If so, for a few days he will be Junior Chairman of the Racketeer Committee.

This will be an all expense-paid trip by jet, and the boys will have rooms in the Mayflower Hotel.

"I hope that I can make Arkansas proud of me, and I will do my best to represent the youth of my state well," said Mack.

Besides now being a State Senator, Mack is President of the Hope High School Student Council and Governor of Boys State. Mack is son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McLarty.

No Trace of Missing Son of Frank Sinatra

STATELINE, Calif. (AP) — Posses pushed a two-day hunt today in the snowy mountains ringing Lake Tahoe for singer Frank Sinatra Jr., reported hostage of kidnapers.

His famed father kept an around-the-clock vigil 65 miles northeast in a Reno hotel. A spokesman said FBI agents had urged him to do it.

No demand for ransom has been reported since the 19-year-old Sinatra vanished Sunday night from a motel just before he was to go on state at a Lake Tahoe night club.

But John Foss, a band trumpet player, told officers he was with Sinatra Jr. when two gunmen burst into the motel room and that they demanded "Where's the money?" before gagging Foss and making off with the young singer.

Foss played in the band with which young Sinatra was appearing.

There was a brief flurry of excitement Monday night when FBI agents announced they had seized six men and 18 guns 20 miles west of Lake Tahoe.

Two of the men were identified as Joseph James Sorce, 23, of El Cerrito, Calif., and Thomas Patrick Keating, 21, of Riverside, Calif., wanted for two bank robberies which netted $13,000.

A novel about BENEDICT ARNOLD by PHILIP VAIL © 1963 by Philip Vail THE TWISTED SABER Distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

It was good to be a boy, to live in Connecticut Colony, to sail a catboat up the Thames River on a hot day in the summer of 1756. Benedict Arnold sat at the tiller of his little craft, handling it with ease as it glided through familiar waters, past patches of elm and oak, maple and pine and cedar on the banks. He whistled, neither knowing nor caring that his rendition of "God Save the King" was slightly off key; it was enough that he was enjoying a holiday.

None of his friends, he thought smugly, were strong or intelligent enough to do two things simultaneously, but he had sailed 12 miles down the Thames, past New London, and had guided his boat through the waters of Long Island Sound as far as Nanticoke, at the same time reading Cicero's "Philippic" in the original Latin. The years he had spent at Dr. Cogswell's academy, up the Quinebaug River, had not been wasted, even though his mother had insisted on apprenticing him to Dan and Joshua Lathrop, Norwich's leading apothecaries.

He had no intention of spending his life grinding powders, rolling pills and concocting elixirs. There were Indians to fight, and Fenchemen, too, now that London and Paris had declared war again.

He grinned, whistled again and sailed the catboat to her berth, an old stone pier. Leaping ashore, he tied the boat quickly with a sure handed knot.

Benedict started down the wharf, then slowed his pace when he saw two older boys, one of them wearing the scarlet and green armband of the Connecticut militia.

"You there!" the young militiaman called. "Where you been?"

Benedict carefully looked the fellow up and down and was relieved to see that he carried no firearms.

"We got a hankering for a fish fry," the young civilian said. "If you don't give us half of your catch nice and peaceable, we'll take all of it."

"As you can see, I haven't been fishing," Benedict smiled lazily, but his blue-grey eyes darkened.

"That's too bad for you. Into the water you go, runt!"

Benedict's temper soared, but his mind continued to function coldly, analytically. The militiaman was the more aggressive of his opponents; however the civilian was taller and huskier. Obviously, the latter was the more dangerous of the pair.

Benedict leaped forward, his head lowered, and butted the startled civilian with such force that the youth lost his balance and toppled backward into the Thames. He thrashed wildly there, cursing at the top of his voice.

Benedict wheeled toward his other foe, who lunged at him. The younger boy side-stepped neatly, then drove his right knee into the militiaman's groin. The assault had been so violent that the militiaman, suffering intensely, gasped in astonishment at the aroused Benedict, who punched him in the face, then drove a fist into the pit of his stomach.

The gasping militiaman doubled over and Benedict jumped on him, forcing the fellow to his knees, then knocking him backward onto the rough stones of the pier. Before the stunned young man could rally, Benedict pinned him to the ground, grasped his hair and bounced the back of his head on the stones.

"Apologize for calling me a runt!"

The older boy had never seen anyone so angry and afraid he would be murdered, managed to gasp, "Sorry."

Benedict released him, stood and looked down. "You're a head taller than I am, but maybe you've also learned that big fellows don't always get things their own way." Benedict spat contemptuously, aimed a short, vicious kick at his ribs and stalked off.

It was too bad that no one had seen his victory, but Benedict consoled himself with the thought that news of the fight would soon be common Norwich gossip. The militiaman, a cousin of one of Benedict's friends, Ned Lahey, would not be able to conceal his bruises, and the drenched civilian boarded at the house of a schoolmate of Hannah Arnold's. Benedict felt suffused with a warm glow. It was good, he reflected, that he had been able to live up to his sister's high opinion of him.

In the haze of summer twilight, the Arnold house still looked imposing. A rambling, three-story structure made of sturdy shingles, it stood on a plot of five acres and was the only private dwelling in Norwich with a gambrel, a roof with two slopes on each side.

He preferred not to look at the house too closely when he drew near it. The realization that it was badly in need of paint, that broken window-panes had not been replaced and that the doors were sagging on their hinges embarrassed him.

Benedict moved into the shadows, approached the nearest window stealthily and peered inside. His father was standing before the cold hearth, with stone jug in his right hand. His feet were planted wide apart and he held his head cocked on one side. His son knew at once that he was trying to steady himself.

Mrs. Arnold sat in a rocking chair opposite the hearth, a prayer book in her lap, and Benedict's worst fears were confirmed when he saw his mother's expression. Her mouth was set, there was a gleam in her eyes that usually appeared there only when she heard an inspiring sermon at church. She was rocking nervously, occasionally holding the prayer book in front of her face like a shield.

"Hannah!" she called. "Come in here!"

Mr. Arnold muttered something, and a moment later 13-year-old Hannah stood reluctantly in the entrance.

"We must pray for your father, Hannah!" Mrs. Arnold's voice was piercing.

Benedict, feeling desperately sorry for his sister, wondered if he might create a diversion that would help her to escape, but rejected the notion. If he showed himself, his mother would insist that he pray, too.

Hannah tugged at her blonde curls, smiled apologetically at her father and looked at her mother with troubled eyes.

"Now, child! Before the demons destroy him!"

Hannah sighed, then obediently dropped to her knees and clasped her hands.

Mr. Arnold, laughing loudly and coarsely, raised the jug of rum to his lips and drank.

A cool sea breeze was blowing north from Long Island Sound, but Benedict felt a trickle of perspiration run down his back. He wished desperately that he could help his father and, although he thought his mother's conduct was ludicrous, he was sorry for her, too. He wanted to tear himself away, but his feet felt as though they were made of lead. He forced himself to watch the scene. Perhaps no man married to a woman as strident, as demanding, as his mother could refrain from drinking too much rum.

Suddenly Mr. Arnold lost his temper. "Wife," he shouted, "You show me too little respect. You forget I was the first citizen of this town. I was elected to every office in Norwich. Count them yourself. Selectman — chief constable — county surveyor — tax collector."

Mrs. Arnold began to sing a hymn, glared at Hannah and the girl raised her own voice in song.

Mr. Arnold began to curse, the Bolivian capital, Martin said Sunday he and the other hostages were well.

The captives include three Canadian technicians, a Dutch mine manager, a West German and a dozen Bolivian technicians. They have been held since Friday at Catavi, a mining center 155 miles southeast of La Paz.

In addition to Martin, the Americans are U.S. information officer Michael A. Kristula of Cadillac, Mich.; U.S. labor officer Bernard Rifkin, 52, a native of Brooklyn, N.Y.; and Peace Corps volunteer Robert Ferguson, whose parents live in Honolulu.

They had gone to the mining area to deliver a $15,000 U.S. aid check to be used for a school and an orphanage.

In exchange for the hostages, the miners demanded release of union leaders, Irineo Pimental and Frederico Escobar. The government said they were arrested on a court order on charges of committing non-political or common crimes. No details were given.

In Reno, the worried Sinatra Sr. said:

"I've always had a fear of kidnapping, especially when the children were much younger than they are now."

"But I thought that was all past, now that they're grown up."

A spokesman in his suite said Sinatra was "sleepless, nervous, tired, worried, concerned — everything a father should be."

Sinatra's spokesman said Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy telephoned late Monday from Washington and assured the entertainer that the full resources of the Justice Department were available in the case.

Ashen-faced Sinatra Sr. flew to Reno by chartered plane from Palm Springs, Calif., in Monday's pre-dawn hours soon after he got word about his son.

Recorder in Plane May Give a Clue

ELKTON, Md. (AP) — The tragedy of Clipper 214 moved today into a mop-up search of a cornfield and the opening of a mishapen metal box.

In the field just north of Elkton still lay scattered pieces of wreckage and some of the remains of 81 persons who perished Sunday night in the explosion and fiery crash of a Pan American World Airways jet plane.

In the box was the flight recorder carried by the four-engine Boeing 707 on its last ride.

Officials faintly hoped it might yield some clue to the cause of the disaster, one of the worst in the history of civil aviation. But they said the recorder, about the size of a box camera, was so badly battered that its story might be lost.

The recorder—an instrument which charts the plane's speed, direction, altitude and encountered gusts of air—was found Monday.

and Hannah covered her ears.

Refusing to give in to the desire to weep, he clenched his fists, thrust his jaw forward and started to speak, aloud.

"I'll kill anybody who says we are scum. Benedict Arnold the First was Governor of Rhode Island. Benedict Arnold the Second was Speaker of the Rhode Island Assembly. Benedict Arnold the Third held all the positions that he said just now. He was the most prominent man in Norwich." Choking, the boy raised a fist and shook it. "I swear to make our name more famous than ever. Before I'm finished, every man in Connecticut will respect it!"

Then he ran from the house.

while post office windows are uncrowded. The Stamp and Parcel Post windows will remain open until 6 p.m. through Friday, Dec. 20.

For Christmas cards, the Postmaster recommends the attractive new 5 cent Christmas stamps showing the National Christmas tree in Washington, D.C. Use of this stamp insures first-class mail treatment — meaning the card may contain personal messages and may be forwarded or returned free of extra charge.

Incidentally, to speed Christmas card handling, letter carriers and post offices will have free supplies available of "local" and "out-of-town" bands for Christmas cards. If you will use these to separate your local and out-of-town cards, it will expedite delivery and assist your post office.

And — just as an additional peace-of-mind safeguard about parcels this Christmas — the Postmaster urges you to insure them.

He noted that — despite the Department's efforts over many years to promote good packaging and addressing — the Postal Service each year has been unable to deliver or return about half a million parcels, including many lost because of poor packaging or incorrect addressing.

Another situation that discourages postal employees is that in which they finally manage to decipher an address on a parcel only to find the deciphered address is completely erroneous — to the wrong street or sometimes even to the wrong city and state.

Once a local post office has exhausted all efforts to make delivery or return a parcel and has held it unclaimed for the standard 90 days, the parcel is usually lost to the sender or intended recipient.

Such parcels are disposed of by the Postal Service at auction held at 15 major post offices over the nation.

The Postmaster emphasized that ZIP Code can also help insure against loss due to poor addressing for letters and parcels. The five-digit ZIP code identifies one specific area. No other area has that same ZIP Code number. Therefore, Mr. Wilson explained — in view of the great number of opportunities for error that arise from the fact that there are many streets and cities with similar names — the ZIP Code is a real asset for Christmas mail, as well as for regular mailings.

"Mailing early with ZIP Code is such a help to the mailer, as well as our Post Office, that I really can't see why everyone doesn't do it," he added.

✓ 1963 Box Score: FORD'S TOTAL PERFORMANCE TOUGHNESS DOMINATES THE COMPETITION WORLD!

Ford has chosen the most rugged testing program cars have ever faced ... full-scale open competition on the rally and racing circuits of the world. This is the dramatic way to show that Fords have changed ... and the sure way to be certain they keep on changing. Changed? Just look at the record:

STOCK CAR RACING:	SPORTS CAR ROAD RACING:	RALLY COMPETITION:	INDIANAPOLIS:	PERFORMANCE & ECONOMY:
2-to-1 margin for Ford. Ford is king of NASCAR competition and Ford Motor Company has the NASCAR Achievement Award to prove it. In the '63 season, special Ford entries won every single race of 500 miles or longer, scored nearly twice as many points as any other make. 500-mile races are the ultimate test of inherent durability and dependability. In two other major stock car racing associations IMCA and MARC, Ford drivers have wrapped up the 1963 championships.	Ford V-8 power is the new king. Here the Cobra with its special Fairlane engine emerged as the overwhelming leader in one short year. Cobra won the coveted Manufacturer's Trophy in SCCA Class A Production competition by so wide a margin no other cars—U.S. or foreign—were even in sight. And in the two major tests this fall, the Laguna Seca and Riverside races, the new King Cobras dusted off the top "unlimited" cars from all over the world.	Manufacturer's Championship. Products of Ford Motor Company and its world-wide affiliates won the 1963 Manufacturer's World Rally Championship. Ford's rally year began when two specially equipped Falcon V-8's started the automotive world in the brutal 2500-mile Monte Carlo Rally. Other special Falcon V-8's triumphed in Holland's famed Tulip Rally, and ran away with the Manufacturer's Team Prize in the 4000-mile Trans-Canada Rally.	Ford ends an era. Advanced Ford engineering smashed precedent in the classic Indianapolis "500." The first time out, a light alloy version of the Fairlane V-8 design in a Lotus chassis finished second. And the next time, in the Milwaukee "200," it ended the reign of the traditional "Indy" racing car by leading every foot of the way from start to finish.	New laurels for Ford. The Mobil Economy Run underscored Falcon's years-long reputation for thrift—a Falcon scored first in Class B (medium-sized compacts). And the Pure Oil Performance Trials brought laurels to the big Fords, which walked off with overall wins in Classes 1 and 11 for total performance (economy, acceleration and braking).

✓ 1964 Result: TOTAL PERFORMANCE INSPIRES THE TOUGHEST, SMARTEST CARS FORD EVER BUILT!

Fords have changed—and that's the real reason behind Ford's racing successes. We're now making the longest lasting, best handling cars in our history. The things we've learned from the specially equipped cars we enter in open competition have helped make them that way.

The inherent qualities that make the victorious racing car—road-holding, braking, durability, precision control, resistance to vibration—also make a car safer, stronger, and smoother for highway use.

But prove it to yourself. Take the wheel of any new Ford. Five minutes on the road will show you the kind of total performance no one else can match.

Students Hear About Life Overseas

Lt. Bill Andrews who has been stationed in Hawaii and Thailand for the past 3 years came to Brookwood School last Wednesday and showed colored slides and spoke for the 4th, 5th and 6th grades.

Lt. Andrews showed the native tribes in Thailand and how primitive they live compared to the modern way in which many of the people live there. Beautiful modern building look just like they do in any big city in the world.

The rainfall being over a hundred of inches a year naturally keeps the rice fields pretty and green. Rice is the main crop and basic food. Thai people eat it three times a day seven days a week.

Favorite sports in Thailand are soccer and horse racing. Lt. Andrews said that very young boys are used as jockeys. Another favorite of the people is raising flowers, the slides showed colorful flower gardens.

The Buddhist religion is the main religion there and their temples are lined with gold and many have huge solid gold statues of Buddha. The high priests are sometimes very young boys.

Buddhists do not believe in killing animals so there are animals everywhere. Lt. Andrews' troop bought a Spider monkey and named it George. son, Gerold, from Little Rock, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Ruel Mullins and family.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Cole of Shreveport have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Connie Ward the past few days.

Mrs. Herbert Lewallen has gone to Dallas to meet her new grandson, Charles Clark Stephens, and his family.

Mrs. Henry Taylor has returned home from Victoria, Ark., where she visited her son, Frederic, his wife and family.

Faubus Taking Another Poll

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus said Monday he is taking a poll on opinions of Arkansans about his chances of winning a sixth term.

Faubus said the poll will also include a question about the presidential election. He would not elaborate.

An earlier poll showed many people think he will run again, Faubus said but, "Don't read that as votes for me."

He made a good mascot.

While camping in the woods it was necessary to sleep on beds high off the ground so that no animals would bite or harm them. One morning Lt. Andrews had a terrifying experience. After shaking his clothing and boots to be sure no rats or insects were inside he looked underneath his bed and there lay a deadly seven or eight foot cobra snake!

Today's News Around the World

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — South Viet Nam plans to send an emissary to Cambodia to explore possibilities of restoring diplomatic relations between the two countries. It was learned today.

Cambodia broke relations with South Viet Nam in August after president Ngo Dinh Diem's regime raided Buddhist pagodas throughout South Viet Nam. Nearly all Cambodians are Buddhists.

VOGHERA, Italy (AP) — Two trainmen were convicted Monday night of multiple manslaughter and causing a railway disaster in which 64 persons were killed. They were sentenced to 13 years in prison. The disaster on May 31, 1962, injured 75 others.

Lanfranco Pigiani, 29, the engineer, and Soriano Fabbri, his assistant, were sentenced on charges of multiple manslaughter and causing a railway disaster.

Pigiani and Fabbri were at the controls of a freight train that rammed the rear of a crowded passenger train standing at a station.

OTTAWA (AP) — The Cuban military court that sentenced Ronald Patrick Lippert of Kitchener, Ont., to 30 years in prison has rejected his appeal, foreign Secretary Paul Martin told the House of Commons Monday. Lippert and William Milne, of Montreal, were arrested in Havana Oct. 24 after landing in a small plane. They were accused of trying to smuggle in explosives. Milne was acquitted.

NEW YORK (AP) — A judge

Visual Teaching
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Three Arkansas schools will receive $3,000 in visual teaching equipment as part of a $1.5 million grant to education by the Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. of St. Paul, Minn. The says there's nothing disturbing about a nude posing in the middle of a deserted Manhattan street on a quiet Sunday afternoon.

The court decision was handed down Monday in the case of the People vs. Jan Tice.

Miss Tice, 27, a model, took off her clothes Nov. 10 on Liberty Street in the financial district to pose for a photographer taking pictures for a book. A policeman happened by and arrested them.

Criminal Court Judge Richard F. Daly acquitted them, saying a breach of the peace requires the presence of the public and "there weren't any people there."

schools are Williams Elementary School at Little Rock, Jefferson Davis Junior High School at North Little Rock and Darby Junior High School at Fort Smith.

In the vicinity of Big Bluff at Twin Creek, in Izard County, are a half dozen petrified trees. They can be seen from the Missouri Pacific's White River division train.

Pittsburgh Excited by Coming Game

By LOU PRATO
PITTSBURGH (AP) — This football-mad city is harboring mixed emotions this week over the fate of its two favorite football teams.

There's a feeling of joy over the Pittsburgh Steelers meeting the New York Giants Sunday for the National Football League's Eastern Division title.

Yet the city is indignant and puzzled over the rebuff given to the University of Pittsburgh's potent Panthers by the post-season bowl committees.

Pitt, the fourth-ranked team in the nation, finished its season last Saturday with only a 24-12 loss to second-ranked Navy marring a 10-game schedule.

But it was completely ignored by all the major bowls.

"It was a little disappointing," said Pitt Coach John Michelosen, who was practically on the verge of losing his job before the season. "The kids felt they had played the best in the country and they did a tremendous job. They should have been rewarded with something and in these days it's bowls."

Just why Pitt was not invited is almost beyond comprehension.

Here is a team that not only had a gaudy record and high press rating, but was about as glamorous and colorful as a college club can get.

It featured a daring, imaginative pro-styled offense with plenty of passing, end runs and reverses — often gambling deep in its own territory by passing when ahead.

It had the flashy backs like Fred Mazurek and Paul Martha and big ferocious linemen who literally bowled over opponents.

And most of all, it had a bold chancellor, Edward Litchfield.

But it was completely ignored by all the major bowls.

Here is a team that not only had a gaudy record and high press rating, but was about as glamorous and colorful as a college club can get.

It featured a daring, imaginative pro-styled offense with plenty of passing, end runs and reverses — often gambling deep in its own territory by passing when ahead.

It had the flashy backs like Fred Mazurek and Paul Martha and big ferocious linemen who literally bowled over opponents.

And most of all, it had a bold chancellor, Edward Litchfield.

But it was completely ignored by all the major bowls.

"It was a little disappointing," said Pitt Coach John Michelosen, who was practically on the verge of losing his job before the season. "The kids felt they had played the best in the country and they did a tremendous job. They should have been rewarded with something and in these days it's bowls."

Just why Pitt was not invited is almost beyond comprehension.

Wesley Bryant to Shrine Game

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Wesley Bryant, a 225-pound tackle from the University of Arkansas, is one of seven Southwest Conference players selected to play in the 39th Shrine East-West football game Dec. 28 in Kezar Stadium.

Bryant, 21, will play for the West squad on which 15 schools will be represented. He was the only Arkansan named for the event. The game is played annually to aid the Shrine Crippled Children's Hospital fund.

The other Southwest Conference players selected for the West team included fullback Tommy Crutcher of Texas Christian, quarterback Don Trull of Baylor, center Ray Kubala of Texas A&M, guard Robert Mangum of Texas Christian, tackle Bobby Crenshaw of Baylor and end David Parks of Texas Tech.

Sam Snead Planning to Quit Golf

By CHARLES STAFFORD

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — Enduring Sam Snead, who came out of the hills of western Virginia 30 years ago to give professional golf some of its great and colorful moments, is nearing the end of his tournament career.

Sam Snead says so.

He says at 51 he isn't in as good physical shape as he used to be.

He says his short game is beginning to deteriorate.

He says he doesn't enjoy tournament golf any more.

But don't count him out. Snead will play in his first PGA Seniors early next year. And look for him when it's tee-off time in the National Open, the one major championship that has escaped him.

Sitting in the pro shop at Harder Hall the other day, Snead took a look at himself, his game and his profession.

"I've passed through a lot of these guys and they keep dropping off and dropping off," he said with a satisfied grin. He ran down the generations of champions with whom he has matched strokes since turning pro in 1934: Picard and Sarazen, Hogan and Nelson, Worsham and Middlecoff, Palmer and Nicklaus.

"When I was on," he said, "I thought I could beat any of them. And when I wasn't on, I couldn't beat anybody."

"You know," he said, "I've only played in eight or 10 tournaments a year since 1960."

"I don't hit them quite as long anymore. I've putted badly for two years. Your short game is the first thing that deteriorates. That's the hardest thing to learn and it goes first."

"I'm not in the physical condition I used to be," he said. "I used to weigh 180 to 182. Now I'm at 195. That extra weight slows you up a little bit."

Golf is fine, he said. "But I don't like tournaments any more. I like to play at the club where you play these guys for a buck or two a hole."

Snead blames his erratic putting on nerves, and the nerves on the game he plays.

"Golf has more of a nervous range than any other sport," he said. "There's more waiting. In other sports, like football, it's all action. But in golf, the mistakes just wait for you to make them."

The waiting hurts, he said. It contributes to what he labels the golfer's biggest enemy, indecision.

"You look at a shot and you say it's a 6-iron, and you're probably right," Snead said. "But then you say, 'Maybe it's a 7,' and then the caddy comes over and says, 'No, it's an 8,' and then you're really in trouble."

As outspoken as ever — perhaps a little more so — Snead doesn't mind expressing opinions. Such as this one:

"The American public is fickle. One day you're a champion and the next day you're a bum. They're always looking for someone to knock off the champ."

"In England and Europe, once you're a champion, you're always looked on as a champion. But there we have a new one every year."

"Why people now don't even know who Byron Nelson was."

But perhaps his verbal jabs

THIS QUESTION OF CHRISTMAS-GIVING

By Helen Worden Erskine

Dear Helen: When my husband and I married six years ago, we went to live in the same town with his folks. This meant giving Christmas presents to all the brothers and sisters and their children, parents and grandparents, since they all had presents for everybody, us among the many others, there seemed no way out.

My own family being more realistic, didn't go along with this keeping - up - with - the - Joneses idea for the simple reason that none could afford to. But each one of my brothers and sisters and myself do join in giving to our father and mother.

After that first expensive Christmas my husband and I agreed that our budget couldn't stand the strain. Then his family conceived the idea of drawing lots to see who would give Christmas presents. This they did at a homecoming Thanksgiving which we were unable to attend, and drew for us in absentia. Don't you think they should have consulted us first? We shall go along with the drawing this year but, wouldn't it be in order for me to say in my thank-you notes after Christmas that we

Porkers Play Hard But Okla. State Wins

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The University of Arkansas Razorbacks battled the favored Oklahoma State University Cowboys to a halftime tie Monday night and then lost steam in the second period as the Cowboys picked up a 74-65 basketball victory.

The Porkers started slowly, allowing the Cowboys an 8-1 lead in the opening minutes of the game, then they gained speed and swept to a 18-17 lead with 9:53 left.

The Arkansas lead came when Warren Vogel stole the ball and moved down court for a lay-in.

A four-point margin was the largest OSU could get during the rest of the half and the Porkers closed the period in a 37-37 tie.

OSU came back inspired in the second half allowing Arkansas to close to within two points at only one instance, this with 4:14 left in the game.

Then the Cowboys went into a semi-stall and used free throws to gradually pull away. Paul LaBrue led scoring with 16 for OSU. He was followed by teammates Gene Johnson with 15 and Larry Hawkes and James Cooper with 14 each.

Jim Jay got 15 points for the Porkers followed by Jim Magness with 12 and Jim Bane with 10.

OSU hit 43 per cent of its shots and Arkansas sank 37 per cent. The Cowboy also led in

Not Leaving Arkansas, Says Broyles

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — At the close of each football season rumors begin to spread around the state that Coach Frank Broyles is getting ready to leave the University of Arkansas.

Generally the rumor says Broyles is on his way back to Georgia Tech, his alma mater. This year a little variety has been added.

The reports say Broyles is on his way to the University of Oklahoma where he will replace Bud Wilkinson, who supposedly is about to run for the U.S. Senate.

Wilkinson had denied that he wants to become a politician and Broyles has put the traditional ending to rumors that he is to leave.

"I'll be in Arkansas as long as I retain my usefulness," Broyles said Sunday night. "That is, as long as the people want me."

"As for myself, I've never believed more strongly in the future of Arkansas. All the signs are good, from high school football programs to the growing economy of the state. We've had only an average season this year, but my staff members and myself are genuinely excited over our future here."

And Mrs. Broyles added: "He's not going anywhere else."

More Going Into the Hall of Fame

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's a thrill that comes once in a lifetime. You can't believe it even when it happens."

Henry Peter Pund, Georgia Tech center and captain of the 1923 national championship team said it at a luncheon Monday but these words could have been uttered by all the living among the 10 all-time greats who will be inducted into the Football Hall of Fame tonight.

The ceremonies will take place at a dinner at which the National Football Foundation made its annual awards.

The new Hall of Famers includes nine players and one coach. Seven are living. All attended the New York Football Writers' luncheon Monday and each expressed his gratification.

"It is very difficult to put my delight and thrill into words," exclaimed Cliff Montgomery, former Columbia quarterback.

"I want to publicly thank my former coach, Ray Elliott," said Alex Agase, Illinois and Purdue guard.

"My two greatest thrills," said tackle George Conner of Holy Cross and Notre Dame, "was when the Cross upset Boston College 51-12 and when I was a member of the Notre Dame national champions."

"My coach at high school said I'd never make the college team as an end," said Ken Kavanaugh of Louisiana State, who went on to become a great pro end.

"It was the greatest honor I ever received in my life. A million-to-one chance," said Edwin Coast Hale, who scored 24 touchdowns and 164 points in his senior year at Mississippi College.

"I am particularly happy that my coach at Colgate, Dick Harlow, also made the Hall of Fame said former Colgate halfback Edward Tryon.

The old timers, all deceased, include Thomas Bum McClung, Charles Buck Wharton and George Woodruff. McClung, a Yale back who played in 1889-91, scored more than 150 touchdowns and 1,000 points. Wharton was a guard for Penn teams in 1893-96, that won 52 and lost four.

Woodruff played at Yale and coached at Penn, where his team's compiled a 10-year record of 124-15-2. He later became acting secretary of the interior, a U.S. federal judge and attorney general of Pennsylvania.

Memphis State Back Sets Record

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave (Bull) Casinelli of Memphis State has broken New Mexico State's hold on the college rushing title and given the unbeaten Tigers their first individual major college football champion in its history.

Trailing in third place, Casinelli gained 210 yards in his final game of the season and vaulted into the rushing championship with 1,016 yards gained according to NCAA Service Bureau statistics released today.

Auburn quarterback Jimmy Sidle, in first while Casinelli was trailing, picked up 171 in his final two games in a bid to become the first signal-caller to win the title, but fell 10 yards short of Casinelli's total. Gale Sayers of Kansas was third with 917 yards.

New Mexico State failed to get a player in the top 10 after winning the title for four consecutive years with Pervis Atkins, Bob Gaiters and Jim (Preacher) Pilot the last two years. Pilot gained only 446 yards this season.

Pro Player Censured for Article

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Ramsey of the Boston Celtics, a self-styled master of deception, has been censured by the National Basketball Association for a by-lined magazine article in which he detailed how he lured opponents into committing fouls.

The censure was contained in a letter from league President Walter Kennedy that should be in Ramsey's morning mail.

The article by Ramsey, which was published in Sports Illustrated under the title of "Smart Moves by a Master of Deception," was accompanied by sketches illustrating the methods the former Kentucky All-America uses to draw fouls.

"I have always thought," said Kennedy, "that the mark of success of an athlete is what he can do within the confines of the rules rather than by circumventing them."

Kennedy said he had no power beyond censuring Ramsey, but "will seek legislation to give me further powers at our next meeting in Boston at the time of the All-Star Game, Jan. 14."

Kennedy said his letter to Ramsey "stressed the responsibility of the players to the youngsters who look upon them as heroes and who might imitate them."

"Now for a highly popular player of the world championship team to say publicly he is a master of deception in an attempt to draw fouls by evasion can only mean that the youngsters will attempt to imitate him."

Dempsey May Have Been Given Mickey

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Ex-heavyweight king Jack Dempsey admits he may have been slipped a mickey before he went into the ring against Gene Tunney and got knocked off the throne he'd held seven years.

But Dempsey insisted he felt fine the day and night of the fight and offered no excuse for dropping the 10-round decision in the rain at Philadelphia on Sept. 23, 1926. More than 120,000 fans watched the fight.

"A doctor told me the next day I'd probably been given a Mickey Finn and I probably was ill for three or four days after that," said Dempsey.

However, the Manassa Mauler was inclined to brush the whole thing off, saying, "It happened about 40 years ago. Who could remember what happened? I was all right. I fought my fight."

Dempsey commented after Benny Marshall of the Birmingham, Ala. News had quoted him as having said he was drugged at the time of the fight. "I don't believe I have ever been sick, before or since," Marshall quoted Dempsey. "It was terrible. Just terrible."

Marshall said he and Atlanta restaurateur Harvey Hester, were present when Dempsey made his remarks in New York about the big bout.

Marshall wrote that the drug was slipped into Dempsey's coffee at breakfast by a trusted companion who "prepared to arrange it so that big money back in Chicago might grow bigger, crooked money, obviously."

The story that the great heavyweight had been drugged has been whispered among old time boxing writers for many years. But it has never been publicly revealed, at Dempsey's request.

Tech Athlete Escapes Death

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark. (AP) — An Arkansas Tech freshman football player narrowly escaped death Monday when he fell from the top of an 80-foot cliff overlooking the Arkansas River near Russellville.

Oliver Harding, 18, of Magnet Cove suffered a concussion and was reported responding well to treatment Monday night at a Russellville hospital.

Harding lay unconscious for nearly two hours in the mud at the edge of the river below the cliff before members of the Russellville Fire Department Rescue Squad could reach him.

The rescuers had to thread their way along a half mile of riverbank with a stretcher to get to Harding.

Harding was exploring with three companions when he fell. They said he was walking along the edge of the cliff when a knee, injured in football, collapsed and he pitched over the edge.

The cliff is located a short distance above the Dardanelle dam.

Steelers, with a 7-3-3 record, should be meeting the Giants, 10-3, at New York Sunday in a showdown struggle for the Eastern Conference championship.

One fact, however, is incontrovertible — the Steelers have compiled the best record in head-to-head clashes with the four teams that were in contention until last Sunday.

Pittsburgh split with both Cleveland and St. Louis and walloped the Giants 31-0 in their first game. So the Steelers go into the Giant game 3-2 against the contenders, with the Browns and Cardinals at 3-3 and the Giants 2-3.

Therefore, in the battle among the contenders, the Steelers can do no worse than wind up in a tie.

Quote of the Week: Honors go to a prone Bob Doherty, a member of the San Diego taxi squad. Running pass patterns in a practice session, he collided with Lance Alworth, one of the American Football League's outstanding stars. They fell heavily to the ground.

"I've never seen so many people running toward me," said Doherty, "leaping over me, and yelling 'How are you Lance?'"

The defensive specialists had their day Sunday with nine scoring touchdowns. . . . The Giants set the pace with Dick Lynch setting an NFL record when he lugged an interception 42 yards for his third touchdown on interceptions this season.

From the foundation of the staff until the election of Elisha Baxter in 1872, governors of Arkansas were inaugurated the same day they were elected.

SOMEONE ALWAYS PAYS FOR LIFE INSURANCE

Either you pay for it out of earnings, or your widow and children pay for it out of the things they must give up. That's why it's a good idea to check over your insurance program; make sure it will provide all the security you want your family to have. And isn't it wise to do it now, while you can?

Make a quick phone call today. Get full details on a sound life insurance program, plus the full story on Woodmen of the World's outstanding program of fraternal and social benefits.
